

- Putting extra effort into ensuring that students understand what is expected of them and providing separate time to the students who can't join during the live session.
- Asking students to lead discussions.
- Providing timely feedback on assignments.
- Sending regularly whole-class communications and contacting each and every student and their parents individually.